San Francisco, June 25 .- When Bil- | morning from Venice-by-the-Sea, where ly Papke steps into the ring at Colma he has been rusticating since his batter on the fifth of next month, to try for the fourth time to batter down Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion of the sprang—into the office of The Bulley Sprang—into the office of the picture of world, he will not be the same Papke | tin sporting editor, the picture of who lowered his colors to the Michigander on last Thanksgiving day.
Since that fateful occasion the middlecrumpled figure which lay sprawled weight from Kewanee has picked up upon the padded floor of the arena several valuable pointers about the last November and listened to the tollseveral valuable pointers about the last November and listened to the toll-pugilistic game, besides have made ing off the seconds, which spelled two or three splendid battles against his defeat. Papke now looks to be the very essence of ruggedness and strength. His face, though tanned by whip Ketchel or any other man who the southern sun, has lost its haggard tips the beam at 158 pounds or there- expression, which has been supplanted by one of ruddy contentment. eyes are clear and bright, while the muscles of his body are as hard and eemingly impenetrable as the steel drivers of a mogul locomotive. In fact, Billy refers to his huge biceps and forearms as "drivers," and expects that they will force Stanley Ketchel over the ten-second grade if they ever land in a vulnerable part of the Michigander's anatomy. All in all, Papke ooks better than ever before-which neans that he probably stands a better chance of beating Ketchel than he has on any previous occasion; even the one when he whipped the latter in 12 rounds at Los Angeles. That was largely due to a fortunate wallop which Papke got over early in the fight, whereas he now looks as the champion and deliver just as many piledriving wallops on the way.

There is no doubt that Papke's recent victory over Hugo Kelly has had a remarkable psychological effect up-on his spirits. After the last Ketchel battle Billy was a thousand miles down in the dumps and was almost ready to quit the prize-fighting game and seek some less strenuous occupation. Billy had sort of figured the thing out in a pessimistic way and had halfway convinced himself that his days of usefulness as a mitt-swinger were over. After a good rest at home, however, he began to take heart again and came back for more. All he needed to completely restore his confidence was a quick victory over some first-class boxer, and when Hugo Kelly's head hit the floor of the Mission street arena after less than two minutes of actual fighting Billy Papke was himself again. He is now ready for all of them and it behooves every man, who signs articles for an engagement with Billy Papke, to go into the ring prepared to meet a smashing, rushing bull-dog, whose every muscle is trained and instructed to aid in the work of battering his opponents to earth.

The directors were in session Wed nesday afternoon from 2 to 5:45 p. m. and the vote was as follows: Against extension-J. G. McDonald W. C. Winder, John H. Seely, Mt. Pleasant; T. H. Smith, Logan; R. R. Irvine (Provo (by proxy); C. A: Hickenlooper, Ogden; Mrs. W. W. Riter, Mrs. N. A. Empey.

For extension-Lester D. Freed, M. K. Parsons and W. F. Armstrong. The meeting and its result engendered some bitterness between President J. G. McDonald and Director Lester D. Freed. Theformer headed the fight against a continuance of the races, and the latter championed the cause of the horsemen and the Jockey club. Immediately following the vote Director Freed tendered his vote and stated that he took the action be A part of Lot Thirteen (13) in Blo cause he had opposed President Mc-

When the board is so dominated by its president that no member of the board not in the good graces of the president has any voice in the proceedings of the board. then, in my opinion, there is no place on the board for persons who do not agree with the president. of what avail such a meeting can be, "To my mind President McDonald's action in connection with the lease of in and for the County of Weber. the Utah Jockey club and with sev eral other matters, have been unsatisfactory "I do not care to have my motives misconstrued. The members of the management of the Utah Jockey club are practically strangers to me, but I know that Mr. McDonald, above all other members of the board, was morally obligated to vote for an extension of ten days to this club of the lease on the fair grounds track. I resigned, not because I was outvoted on this proposition, but because I cannot tolerate the actions of the president of the board in eternally usurping the rights of the entire board."

When the discussion began at the meeting, Mr. Freed read a letter from Treasurer W. F. Gleason, setting forth the position of the Utah Jockey club and the plea of the horsemen for an extension of ten days. He said tomobile company of this city, created that to close at this time would be a great loss to the horsemen, as many known. Mr. Woodill, who returned great distance to enter them in the big stake events at which about $15, 000 would be distributed. Freed claimed that President McDonald had exceeded his authority in announcing that the races would close on the 25th, without a meeting of the board. He also claimed that President Mc-Donald had given the Jockey club assurances that the meeting would continue for forty days.

President McDonald read a petition from numerous business men asking that the racing be stopped and he also produced letters from Senators C. A. Badger and C. E. Marks and from Representative Cannon, asking that the meeting be brought to a close. Treasurer W. H. Gleason took the blow in a quiet manner and said:

"The decision of the state fair board not to extend the meeting to the expected limit of forty days was a great disappointment to us, but inasmuch as this decision represents the voice of a majority of the directors, we will accept it gracefully and without complaint or criticism. It means quite a big loss to us and a great inconventence and loss to horsemen who expected to share in the distribution of the $15,000 or $18,000 additional purse money that we would have distributed in the ten days, but it cannot be helped now. The meeting will end after the card is run off Friday afternoon, in accordance with the officially expressed wish of the fair board of directors.'

It is expected that by Saturday nearly all the horses will be shipped out of the city. Most of them will go to Butte for the meeting there next month. With reference to the Davis county proposition, mentioned a few days ago, Mr. Gleason said:

"You may say that it is our aim to build a mile track, one of the best in the country, and that some of the very best men in the state will be associated in the project."
